Subject: AC-2025-LON-004293 — Two Questions for the Justice Committee

Dear Justice Committee,

I am an autistic litigant in person with diagnosed PTSD. I have no legal representation and no income. I write to place two questions on the parliamentary record.

On 11 March 2026, the Administrative Court refused permission for my judicial review and certified the claim as Totally Without Merit. The TWM certification removed my right to an oral hearing.

The court's order states that I made "criminal complaints" against my husband and complains of the defendants' response to those complaints. That is not what the claim was about. The claim raised seven specific grounds concerning administrative acts — including the revocation of my statutory participation measures without order, hearing, or reasons. The court's order does not address any of those grounds. Ground 7 — the administrative void — is not mentioned at all.

The court answered a question I did not ask. It did not answer the questions I did ask. The decision is harmful and it does not engage with my claim as pleaded.

I attach the court order alongside the Grounds Engagement Table, which sets out my seven grounds and what the court addressed. The gap is visible on the page.

I have two questions for the Committee.

Question 1.

Where a court refuses permission for judicial review on grounds that do not correspond to the grounds actually pleaded — and certifies the refusal as Totally Without Merit, removing the right to an oral hearing — what mechanism exists within the justice system for the affected party to have the actual grounds determined? If no such mechanism exists, does the Committee consider that acceptable?

Question 2.

Where the affected party files an application under CPR 3.1(7) asking the court to correct its own order, and that application is sealed by the court but remains unanswered for 33 days while deadlines and costs run against the party — is the Committee satisfied that the administration of justice is functioning as intended?

These are not requests for judicial intervention. They are questions about whether the system contains a mechanism for this situation. If it does, I ask that it be identified. If it does not, I ask that the Committee state whether that is acceptable.

I also attach the Justice Committee Submissions Record documenting 9 submissions to this Committee since 16 February 2026. No substantive response has been received to any of them.

Yours faithfully,

Nadia Zahmoul
