

Dear Chair and Members of the Justice Committee,

I submit this statement to place on the Parliamentary record a matter directly connected to current public scrutiny concerning Mr Andrew Mountbatten Windsor's business dealings and financial relationships during the period in which he acted as UK Trade Envoy.

The public record includes:

- The Sunninghill Park property transaction; and
- Documented correspondence dated April 2011 concerning a proposed infrastructure project in Kazakhstan in which Mr Kenes Rakishev was involved.

These matters are not peripheral. They form part of the present national scrutiny.

Mr Rakishev was specifically named during the House of Commons debate on Kazakhstan: Anti-corruption Sanctions (3 February 2022). Dame Margaret Hodge MP stated:

“Kenes Rakishev is a mysteriously wealthy Kazakh businessman worth up to $1.6 billion, with close ties to the political elite, and a close associate of the head of the Chechen Republic, who has been sanctioned by the US.”

(Hansard, 3 February 2022)

There is a live Judicial Review before the Administrative Court:

AC-2025-LON-004293 (Zahmoul v Secretary of State for Justice & HMCTS).

The Judicial Review concerns matters formally raised before the High Court and Court of Appeal for which no identifiable judicial act — no judge, no order, no reasoned determination — is identified.

One of those matters concerns alleged false representations made in UK proceedings in February 2024 regarding shareholdings in Oxus Acquisition Corp, a Nasdaq-listed SPAC controlled by Mr Kenes Rakishev, as reported in SEC filings.

Formal applications were made in March, July and November 2024, and again in March and July 2025, seeking judicial determination. A referral was submitted to the Attorney General on 21 May 2025.

No judicial determination has been identified.

The issue is straightforward and binary:

Either a judicial act exists determining the matters formally raised — or it does not.

- If it exists, it can be identified.
- If it does not, the absence of determination remains.

In the context of ongoing scrutiny into financial relationships connected to UK public office, the continued absence of judicial determination is a matter of constitutional importance.

I respectfully request that this statement be placed on the Parliamentary record and that the Committee consider seeking clarification from the Ministry of Justice as to whether identifiable judicial determinations exist in respect of the matters formally raised, and, if not, what safeguards exist to prevent prolonged non-determination.

This statement is submitted for the purpose of formally placing the matter on the Parliamentary record.

A copy of this statement is being provided to members of the press in the interests of transparency and public scrutiny.

All relevant materials are filed within the Administrative Court proceedings and publicly indexed at:
